From the editor

Have our lives always moved this quickly? A coworker says, "It's the times we live in." Email, mobile phones, texting, online networking, work, families and friends, meetings, service, leisure time(?!), commuting, personal and spiritual care … phew! That's why, when my day ends—even if it's very late and I haven't had dinner, or I come home to dishes in the sink—I still love coming home. I experience the same feeling of relief and comfort I felt after attending my first meeting.

This issue celebrates that feeling. From Basic Text excerpts to reports and photos from WCNA 33 in Barcelona, to the reprieve of finding others with whom we can relate and recover, our members generously and poignantly share their experiences.

Special note to artists and humorists: We're seeking your creativity for The NA Way. Please see the "comic strip" on page 16. We hope you'll share your recovery in this special way.

Alive and grateful
Second in a two-part series

The excitement and anticipation could be felt. Slowly dusk fell on the convention site. Chairs were moved to the edges of the isle of life, creating a ring with a rope held in place by volunteers and people crowded around it. The countdown was about to begin. First, the convention committee and volunteers of the first IRCNA held in 1997 at Kolkata were greeted with loud applause. After that, contests were held and raffle prizes were given away. Then the IRCNA 5 committee introduced their volunteers and were warmly applauded for their efforts.

Then the countdown began. Two members made a formidable duo conducting the countdown. The two ladies from Sweden were to leave early, so they and all of the other ladies went forward. Chants of “Keep coming back!” and “Alive and grateful!” reverberated. The numbers were called out. Eight countries from four continents were represented there, with a total attendance of 383 addicts (fifteen ladies and 368 men) and twenty-six family members. Together we had 1,268 years and five days of cleantime—an average of 3.3 years per addict.

One by one the regions and areas were called up, and the chanting continued: “Keep coming back! Alive and grateful!” There was a lull and the sound of collective panting after the continuous chanting. Then the music picked up again in a different tempo. The ultimate countdown had arrived. Anyone with twenty-five years clean? Long pause. Twenty-four years? Pause. Twenty-three? Another long pause. And then a collective catching of breath as someone clean since 1986 waltzed into the ring and the crowd chanted, “Keep coming back!” The music rose to a crescendo, and from the mike we were asked, “What do we tell her?” “Keep coming back!” replied the crowd.

Then came the call for twenty years clean, and three stepped forward. The crowd knew no other words: “Keep coming back!” One member danced uninhibited to the music as his cleantime was called. People were hugging those coming out of the ring, people were hugging each other at random, and love was being shared with one and all. Some went wild and some were hoarse already from shouting, and still we were prodded, “Can you all speak up a little? What do we tell them?” “Keep coming back!” we insisted. One by one the years went by until we hit two years. By this time the ring was becoming crowded. Eighteen months, one year, and then the monthly breakdowns until we hit thirty days. The crowd went quiet. Nine days, eight, seven… and no one came up.

Then there was this miracle from Bangladesh. On their way to the convention, some ten addicts had been queued up at a border checkpoint between Bangladesh and India, where there was a long line of applicants and checking in was thorough and slow. These addicts stayed in the line for fifty-two hours, with little food and hardly any rest, just so that they could go to the convention. They arrived cheerful and happy to be a part of the celebration of recovery.

Among those ten addicts, nine were clean and one was still using. While they were waiting, in the boredom of the long wait, he used up all his stuff. The border is a hotbed of smuggling and peddling of drugs, yet this guy sought help from his companions, faced the “cold turkey,” reached Kolkata, refused all offers of medication, and arrived at the convention clean. He stepped forward to celebrate six days clean. “Keep coming back!”

The last one to come up was a member with just four days clean—and that was that! Then we called for the still-suffering addict who was clean just for this moment, and we kept the invitation open by placing an empty chair in the middle. It was a poignant moment! We thanked HP for giving us this beautiful day, and we all trooped in to dance one more time and to celebrate being clean, alive, and grateful just for today.

After that we made a long procession to the large volleyball court, each of us with a candle and a firework. We gathered in a circle. Candles were lit and we remembered the still-suffering addict with a minute’s quiet time, prayed the Serenity Prayer, and placed the candles in a circle at the center. That was a signal for the fireworks to begin. Up and up they went, bursting into colors, strings of light, showers of sparks, and we marveled at the power of the program and the glory of life.

The chairperson stepped to the microphone. “Good night. Now it’s time to go home. We’re the addicts; we’re the addicts living clean.”

My story doesn’t end here—oh, no! My dispatch is truncated at this point, but the journey goes on and on, for it’s the journey that is itself the destination. Keep coming back!

Thanks for Basic Text story

I’m not entirely sure whom I should be sending this to, or if it will get to the people I hope it does, but can you please forward this to anyone involved with selecting or getting stories into the Sixth Edition Basic Text, specifically the story “Terminally Unique”?

I’ve been bouncing around in and out of recovery for years now. The biggest barrier to my whole recovery has been a sense of “uniqueness” that many people seem to encounter, but in my case I felt that I was a “special” case since I happen to be transsexual. It may be an outside issue in meetings, and believe me, I don’t mention it to anyone. I try to keep this private, but it’s been a major problem for me, and has been a tool of my disease, used to alienate me from just about everyone else. We’re an extremely tiny minority in this world. I’ve met only a few others in recovery like myself, and they were in another city in another state. In my home state, which is quite conservative, it just isn’t something you can talk about.

When my sponsor got a copy of the Sixth Edition and pointed out the story by someone like me, I cried. It was truly something I never in my life expected to read in recovery literature. So, to whoever was responsible for it ending up in the book, thank you. I finally am starting to see that I can’t use this “issue” against myself anymore. Thank you, NA.

A home group

I was reading a copy of our NA Way Magazine and came across the page with “Grupo La Magia” in Uruguay (April 2008). I started to cry, as this room is so familiar to me even though I live in Michigan. These rooms are so very important when we share with each other the NA way. The same feeling came over me when I read the description in the same issue about the group in Tehran, Iran, that held its meeting outside at –8 degrees Celsius (about 18 degrees Fahrenheit). This is the spirit of unity at work when we come together to help each other stay clean. A home group offers its members a place where we belong, where people know us and we have gotten to know them—a place to call home. But sometimes, our home group doesn’t feel at all homey and we feel lonely. For members who feel this way, this is how I got in touch with God. Sometimes we don’t really know our feelings when we pray or share with other addicts. Sometimes it takes a photograph to sum up our feelings about what is missing in our lives. Thank God for this magazine and all the home groups we can call home when the ones we belong to don’t feel like home.

Step Two

The phrase "came to believe" implies that it is something that happens over time and is a process. My whole life has been lived with the conviction that I could not rely on anyone and that doing so is a sign of weakness. I spent a lot of time and energy denying the existence of God. I tried to believe that I could be spiritual without a relationship with a power greater than myself. When I am really honest with myself, I know I was never completely spiritual because it was a state of being that was lived only within the limits of my own heart and mind. Therefore the experience was limited to me and my human limitations. Something had to give.

When I came back into the life of recovery and the steps of NA, I decided to put my ego and prior convictions aside to just be willing and allow for other possibilities. It didn’t happen all at once, but quickly enough I began to experience a change in my outlook and state of mind. While I didn’t think my life was completely insane and out of control, I did feel a void spiritually. And what happened to me is that I started to think that living life without God was actually insane. The idea of going it alone and being overmatched by life’s challenges, when just being willing to give believing a chance could result in a more peaceful life, was just so obviously wrong. It was a risk that I was willing to take.

At this point for me, I don’t stress about what I don’t know and what answers I don’t have. I may never know certain things for sure. In fact, just giving up the struggle to figure everything out is easier. Each day I continue to build my relationship with my higher power. My spiritual journey is to find harmony with the virtues and energy that I think God gives to us and expects us to give to others. Restoration of the mind, body, and soul is possible with a power greater than me.

There is something happening now that I am aware of that was invisible to me before. My heart and soul sense that there is something else I can tap into. It is a place that elevates my consciousness and grounds me at the same time. I feel blessed to have had a second chance.

H&I in Southern Utah

This article is so long overdue. First, I want to thank all the inmates who attend Hospitals and Institutions meetings in correctional facilities. You all have blessed me with much gratitude and purpose.

A little over three years ago, I moved to an area that was pretty much “baby NA.” I wanted to get involved and give back what was so freely given to me. I investigated H&I and discovered that there wasn’t an NA H&I meeting in the local correctional institution for women. I was incarcerated in 1963 and the following years, and there were no H&I meetings brought into the facilities where I was incarcerated. It has always been part of my recovery to want to serve in this area. What a perfect time for me at this point. I investigated and continued to pursue the opportunity of taking in an H&I meeting; I was turned down a few times, but continued to try. Finally, I received a letter of invitation to attend an orientation at this facility. I attended, and shortly after that I started to take a meeting of Narcotics Anonymous to these women. Because the area was small and just starting to grow, there was no one willing or with enough cleatime or “off paper” to be part of the H&I team. So, I went in alone for about six months (not suggested). I started to sponsor some women in the area where I lived, and when they had met the cleatime requirements and were off paper, they attended with me. I am so blessed to say that at the present time there are six women who qualify to take meetings into this facility.

The deputies and sergeants continue to express their gratitude for the service we share with the girls. In fact, get this: I was invited to be the guest speaker at their graduation ceremony last year. OMG! I was so deeply touched to be given the opportunity. I attended their ceremony with the sheriffs, under-sheriffs, school board presidents, and other powers that be. And here was this recovering addict as their guest speaker. All the inmates who were graduating knew that I could relate to this experience because I also received my GED in the penitentiary in 1963. Since I wasn’t introduced to NA in that facility, when I was released I went back to doing the same things over and over again, for I had no plan and knew nothing of NA at that time. We all know that if nothing changes, nothing changes.

I am so grateful to be a member of H&I and to be able to take a meeting into this correctional institution. I say this because you all allow me to continue to give it away and you give me a purpose in life. I am so grateful to all of you. What a wonderful gift when I am at an outside NA meeting and someone taps me on the shoulder and says, “Hi, remember me?” Something that we also do is hand out a meeting list the week an inmate is being released, and we volunteer to meet them at their first meeting.

Oh, and did I mention that my clean date is 21 October 1981? Okay, you old-timers, reach out and touch an inmate through H&I!

OMG! I was so deeply touched

...in their own language

I am sorry to report that I am on my way home from China. I will only be here another week. This summer my mother had a stroke and was diagnosed with a brain stem lesion of some kind. She cares for my dad who is in a wheelchair, so I am headed back home. My heart aches because I love my “China Connection,” but, my higher power has altered the path and I must follow that. I will continue to practice my Mandarin Chinese and keep in touch with the fellowship guys in Shanghai and Wuhan. If they need anything from the states, I am all over it. Hopefully, I will be able to return to Shanghai in the near future to pick up where I left off with the NA China Region mission!

Since I moved here two years ago I have seen us go from two meetings per week to seven, from ten members to twenty-two members. The service structure is solidifying and the Basic Text is being shared around. Even though my goal of sponsoring a Mandarin-speaking Chinese woman did not come to pass, I feel I have seen growth.

I just have to share one story with you. Several years ago I felt the strange calling to go help with NA in China. I went to the NA world convention in Texas with one goal in mind: to find someone from NA World Services to ask if I should move to Beijing, Shanghai, or Kunming. I ended up doing service with a woman from Hawaii at the registration booths, and she suggested, “Go to the APF—Asia-Pacific Zonal Forum.” No matter how many times I asked her which city to move to, she kept saying, “Just make sure you go to the APF.”

I moved to Shanghai and met a Chinese woman who could not read Chinese or speak English, but she wanted to stay clean. I worked with her often, but felt that without the Basic Text for help she might never understand me totally. Then I finally went to the APF in Malaysia. The Iranian guys gave me a wonderful collection of the Iranian Region’s quarterly magazine in Farsi. When I returned to Shanghai, I was showing everyone the book at a meeting and the Chinese newcomer woman grabbed hold of it and began to cry. It was printed in her Muslim tongue from Northern China, and she could understand the message of NA for the first time. She carried that book with her to every meeting until she moved back to her home province and we lost touch. And her name was Nana! I love this journey!

Long-distance learning

One day as I drove to work, the regional delegate from the Maldives phoned me. He wanted to know how to go about conducting a Hospitals and Institutions presentation for a big group inside a rehab facility near there. I spoke briefly to him and learned that two men and two women members would do the presentation.

I pulled over in my car and spoke a bit about the “do’s and don’ts” and the dress code we all adhere to when going for an H&I presentation. There was so much information and experience I needed to share with him that we would need to speak at length and at ease. Also, I soon realized that I would need to repeat all this information to the rest of their panel, so we fixed a time for him to call back. I requested that all four of them be present and we’d talk by speakerphone. I was going to give them a mock H&I presentation from more than 2,000 miles away.

On schedule, the group called me back. After pleasant hellos and introductions, we got down to business. I told them that after the Serenity Prayer and opening reading were done, the panel leader would give a brief explanation of H&I presentations. Then he/she should ask all inmates to introduce themselves as “addicts,” and the others would greet them just like in a regular meeting. This is one way to lighten the dense atmosphere inside.

I went on to explain that H&I speakers usually restrict their sharing to ten minutes each, no more. After the panel had shared, they could take questions, making clear that no questions about the institution or treatment facility were allowed, but any other questions about the NA program, meetings, and recovery were welcome. Then I did something that I had never tried in my life before. I shared the H&I way over a long-distance international phone call in eight minutes flat. There was not a second when I paused or slowed down; it just came pouring out.

The credit goes to the small and relatively new NA fellowship of Male for being open-minded and willing to try something that I am sure nobody has tried before in the APF region, and it worked.

On the day of the presentation, they telephoned me to say they had just stepped outside the facility. The presentation went off smoothly. They were talking to me from the boat they’d taken to the island where the rehab was located. I could only imagine the addicts inside being uplifted by our wonderful message of hope.

I could not wait to visit the Maldives in May 2009 to do H&I and public information workshops face-to-face with the members there. I could feel that these four were enthusiastic NA members who love H&I, and who will definitely make a difference to their local fellowship in the days ahead. When we arrived on Male, we were mesmerized by the crystal-clear, multicolored waters and the beautiful, smiling faces of our hosts. We conducted a PR presentation for local officials and caregivers and conducted service workshops and discussions for our fellow members. I would like to thank the fellowship of NA Male for allowing me to be of service to them. This was a brand-new H&I experience, guys!!

Phoneline guidelines: our best practices

We cannot deny other addicts their pain, but we can carry the message of hope that was given to us by fellow addicts in recovery. Basic Text, “How It Works”

There are many good reasons to follow the guidelines in our service handbooks. One is that they represent our fellowship’s “best practices,” which means they are based on tried-and-true experience. Another is that our guidelines protect us from ourselves and they protect our fellowship and anonymity.

Our primary purpose is to carry the NA message, and our phonelines are a key way for us to provide information to the general public and addicts seeking recovery. While we always want to be available to help an addict in need, there are those who may abuse our services. A good way to provide genuinely needed service is to have and follow our service guidelines. For example, if a phoneline caller wants to meet with a member, we can offer to get together with them at a meeting—and remember that any service is best done by more than one addict. We might want to provide only meeting information through our phonelines. We can ask for a telephone number to call back, rather than giving out any personal contact information for ourselves or other members. We can provide public transportation information, etc.

Unfortunately, there may be people who take advantage of the good nature and desire to help that are common in our new way of life, but when we follow the experience of our predecessors, we can safely and lovingly serve those seeking recovery in NA.

Editor’s Note: Our thanks to several US NA members who shared this information with each another and with NA World Services.

For more information, please see NA service handbooks, including the Public Relations Handbook and A Guide to Phoneline Service. NA service material is available for purchase at http://www.na.org/?ID=OrderLiteratureOnline-content, and a selection of handbooks may be viewed online at http://www.na.org/?ID=handbooks-handbook-index.

Many local NA phonelines throughout the United States have been contacted by a caller who identifies himself as a long-haul trucker from a distant state with long-term clean time. He usually says he wants to use because of a tragedy such as having a heart attack or the death of his wife and children. He’ll ask to meet at a restaurant or to be picked up in front of a hospital, and typically asks the volunteer to pay for meals and/or a hotel room for him. If he goes to a meeting, he tends to share about the “tragedy” and claims to have no money or a place to stay, saying things like “I will have to find a safe doorway to sleep in.”

Reaching Out

Reaching Out is a newsletter dedicated to sharing the NA message with members who are recovering “on the inside.” Letters “from the inside” are submitted by NA members recovering while incarcerated, and those “from the outside” allow members to share their experience, strength, and hope with members on the inside. There is always a need for sharing from members on the outside. Work is underway to make Reaching Out submissions even easier. Once developed, these tools will be introduced in Reaching Out, The NA Way Magazine, and our website.

Members who will be incarcerated for six months or longer may request a free single-copy yearly subscription; multiple-copy subscriptions are sent to all area service committees for use by their service subcommittees. Annual twenty-copy paid subscriptions are also available for members or service committees to distribute as they see fit.

Letters and subscription requests can be mailed to NA World Services, Reaching Out, PO Box 9999; Van Nuys, CA 91409 USA, or you can email us at fsmail@na.org (include Reaching Out in the subject line of your message). You can also fax material to the attention of Reaching Out at 818.700.0700. For more information, please visit the Reaching Out Web page at http://www.na.org/reaching_out/index.htm.
The primary purpose of the World Convention of Narcotics Anonymous (WCNA) is to provide a special celebration of our recovery, a reflection of our diversity, and a demonstration of our unity.

A Guide to World Services in Narcotics Anonymous

On the following pages, members share their WCNA 33 experiences. From the hot, humid streets of Barcelona, along the shore of the Mediterranean Sea, and within the hotel and convention center rooms, we are treated to three points of view. It's the closest to the “real thing” we can offer here in The NA Way.

Transmissions from WCNA

When he returned to Indiana, Dave P captured his recollections of WCNA in the article that appears on the next pages. From the unofficial events of Wednesday night until his return to the US, he tells us about what he saw and experienced... and how dreams really do come true in NA.

Ron H shared "live posts" via his mobile phone during workshops and speaker meetings throughout the convention. From many, many pages of messages, we culled some of his own musings and what he heard from speakers at workshops and main speaker meetings. Ron's article begins on page eleven.

Dion's Calendar

Counting down the days before leaving for the convention, Dion's calendar on page thirteen carries us through his journey to Spain. We sit in with him at the European Delegates Meeting, and then enjoy his time at the convention, including his time serving as one of the speakers at the Saturday night main meeting.

Photographs

We are so grateful to members who took photos while at the convention. There is no arguing that a picture speaks a thousand words. The photos here not only speak words, they also convey the emotion and spirit of this recovery celebration, amor sin fronteras... love without borders.
Transmissions from WCNA 33
Two NA members share their WCNA experiences, their observations, and what they heard from workshop and main meeting speakers.

Dave P remembers
Beautiful, unforgettable, and life-changing: WCNA 33, held 20-23 August 2009 in Barcelona, Spain. Writing about my experience poses a bit of a challenge. It’s so difficult to put into words what it felt like to be surrounded by a sea of thousands of diverse addicts from all over the world, speaking different languages, all united by one common goal: to celebrate the joy of living clean.

The convention unofficially started Wednesday night with a speaker and a dance. Displays showcased NA memorabilia from over a half century of our history and from all over the world. More than 6,800 chairs were set up in the hall where the main speaker meetings would be held. Throughout the room were four large viewing screens. The main stage had a podium and two more screens, so no matter where you sat, it was like having a front-row seat. In the back of the room were the translators’ booths where NA members translated the message of hope into various languages. Speakers and workshop leaders came from at least thirty-two countries and every continent on earth except Antarctica.

Thursday night kicked off with a presentation by a passionate Spanish flamenco group. There wasn’t an empty seat to be had, so many addicts stood for more than two hours to hear a touching message from Toni. She helped start the first NA meeting in her country. Then Earl shared about dealing with life on life’s terms and how difficult that can be. Both speakers shared a heartfelt message of love, hope, and gratitude for NA.

Friday night the show started with an explosive Spanish drumming group that set the stage for the excitement of the geographic countdown. Sixty-five countries were represented, with the largest turnouts from the US, UK, Denmark, and Spain. Our main speakers that night were Chrissie and Reggie.

Saturday night was by far the most emotional, spiritual, and moving night of the convention for me. I remember a year ago announcing in a meeting at home that our Unity Day would be 22 August, but not fully understanding what that meant. After experiencing it in person, I can tell you that at no other point in my life have I felt so much energy in one place at one time. We started off by connecting by telephone with different groups from around the world. There were over 100 Unity Day hookups, and we had the chance to hear live greetings from several of the groups. Each group announced their name, how many people were there, and what time it was locally. Some were having breakfast, and for some it was the middle of the night when everyone else in their country was fast asleep.

Along with the thousands of addicts all over the world connected by telephone, some 6,000 addicts in the main hall interlocked arms and hearts to say the Serenity Prayer together. There are no words to describe how beautiful, how powerful that was, but that moment has forever changed my life in a very positive way. We then heard speakers from six different countries. I recommend ordering the speaker CDs to personally experience the NA message of hope, humility, love, passion, experience, strength, and joy, carried by all the speakers at WCNA 33. I had to leave before the closing meeting on Sunday. Due to the large number of workshops that were available, it was impossible to get to every one of them, so I plan to spend the next year listening to all the CDs of all the speakers.

While I was at the convention I spoke to so many addicts and heard so many things to share with you. I was told that many addicts from Iran applied for visas, but only seven were allowed to come. There was a guy who had people signing a banner that he wished to mail back to the members in Iran. He also had one to send to a country that is so poor that no one could afford to come, but through this banner, the fellowship made them a part of anyway.
The World Convention of NA is held every other year and is an experience of a lifetime. In 2007, when I had around a month clean, my sponsor went to San Antonio, Texas, for WCNA 32. I didn’t have the funds and couldn’t get the time off work, as I had just started a new job. His comforting words to me were that if I stayed clean and put away $50 to $100 each month, in two years I could go to Barcelona, Spain, to attend my first world convention.

My two-year NA birthday was 21 August. It happened that my sponsor and I were awake Friday morning, so at 12:01 am, he gave me my two-year medallion and was the first to congratulate me. It was a very special experience. I celebrated that night by attending the main speaker meeting and geographic countdown. And then, on Saturday morning, I took a cake with a group of friends at a local Barcelona meeting. There was also someone there marking twenty years clean, so it was an awesome celebration.

Two years ago, attending a world convention seemed like such an impossible feat. But, my sponsor believed in me and, by the grace of God, I did it. Thank you, Narcotics Anonymous, for making a dream become a reality.

Thursday Workshops

Silvia:
When I saw the banners for this convention on the main streets of my home city, I was SOOO proud.

Karen:
I’ve been struggling recently to forgive my mom and having a hard time with her; then an email came asking me to do this workshop on forgiveness…

Yuval:
I really needed to talk to my sponsor, but I couldn’t get in touch with him. He called me back a week later and said, “Did you want to talk?” I said, “Yes, but now I forgot why.” He said, “See, it works.”

Greg:
Everyone wants to say their home group is the best in the world. I’m actually pretty sure there might be one on a beach in Tahiti somewhere that I’d like better than mine.

Thursday Night Main Meeting

Announcements from the podium:
Big thanks for the translators (huge applause). Members from more than 60 countries here; translation headsets sprinkled throughout the crowd.
A five-page, glossy article written by a famous journalist was published this week in Spain’s biggest newspaper. Some newcomers here today said that reading that article made them decide to come to the convention.
The meeting begins with our usual readings in Russian, Hebrew, French, Farsi, and Finnish (some Scandinavians shouting out the numbers and finishing each line in English).

Toni:
I’m an addict, but I’m not an idiot. When my grandma first dipped the bread in wine for me as a kid and I got a feel of that, I said, “Grandma, this bread is really dry! Can you moisten it again for me?”

Earl:
I’d like to welcome the newcomer, the oldtimer, and the sometimer. Y’all keep comin’ back.

Friday Main Meeting

There’s pandemonium in the room! The geographic countdown is tonight, so country groups are waving their flags; some are in traditional local dress, gathering with their flags for pictures, or shouting competing soccer chants. There’s loud music and dancing all around; people are on chairs to get pictures. It’s a delicious cultural stew here. The evening begins with wild,
The room quiets as the meeting begins with readings in Swedish (accompanied by chanting by the Swedes), Arabic, Farsi, French, and Polish.

Reggie:
When I was new they told me to just listen for about ninety days. They said, “If we want to know how to get loaded, you’ll be the first one we call on.”

Chrisissie:
(Talking about WCNA in London in 1986): I had walkie-talkie envy; you had to have a year clean to carry one. I met a man at that convention. We’re still together twenty-eight years later. What’s kept us together is NA. We’re both passionate about service locally and at the EDM [our zonal forum]. Relationships in NA can work. (applause)

Saturday Main Meeting

Unity Day begins with the Serenity Prayer shared around the world as pictures of the worldwide fellowship are shown.

The readings: English, Turkish, Arabic, French, Bengali. And now the speakers…

Tomo:
I fell in love with a guy from Hawaii who is now my husband. I learned English, and I’m now secretary of my Monday night home group. My English got a little better, so I stepped up to serve as GSR. There are no coincidences. If I hadn’t met my husband and moved from my country, I wouldn’t be here tonight. If I hadn’t gotten clean in my home country, I would never have gotten here.

Bablu, expressing gratitude to his wife, the beautiful woman in the sari with the bindi:
She’s been sitting in the chair next to me, crying tears of support for her husband.

Pam:
I came here with a little kid; now he’s made me a grandmother in NA.

Dion:
I had a dream of getting to a world convention, just getting to one. I shared about it, talked about it, but never dreamed of being up here.

Jose Luis:
My doctors wanted to remove my kidney…but now, months later, I still have my kidney and I’m getting better.

Sima:
I was one of the first women to find recovery in my country. I found a meeting 400 km from home (about 250 miles) and there were no women there. I hated it. I remem-

Our members share

NA reaches us no matter where we are and who we are, and this is especially evident in the personal stories of our new Sixth Edition Basic Text. "Our Members Share" is now the name of this part of our book, where the stories are grouped in four sections. In "Beginnings," stories from some of our early members are included as they were originally published in previous editions of the Basic Text. This is followed by "Coming Home," accounts from members finding our fellowship or starting NA where they live. The "Regardless of..." section includes stories about finding acceptance in NA and creating a safe and welcoming place for all recovering addicts. And, with a focus on "Life on Life’s Terms," the final section of the book includes stories from members practicing NA principles in day-to-day life. In this issue of The NA Way Magazine, we’ve included excerpts from "Coming Home."

Coming home

In the "Coming Home" section of the Basic Text, members share about finding NA, or in some cases, starting NA in their part of the world. The Basic Text is available online at www.na.org/?ID=ips-index or may be purchased at www.na.org/?ID=OrderLiteratureOnline-Content.

A quiet satisfaction

At the end of his using, even the other street boys and the dealers didn’t want him around, but NA felt like home from his very first meeting. Sometimes he is the only person in the room, but that only renews this Kenyan addict’s commitment to recovery.

Service has been the cornerstone of my recovery. My friends tell me that I underrate all I do, but I feel apprehensive sharing about service. I try to serve with humility—nothing compares to the joy of service, of sharing the NA way, setting up tables, attending meetings, connecting members with each other, passing on books and other NA literature, corresponding with those visiting Kenya, holding public information workshops, bringing together new groups outside Nairobi, and now, recently, sponsoring other members. Surrounding countries like Rwanda, Uganda, and Tanzania are starting to ask for literature. We are working on getting them what they need. What a quiet satisfaction there is in being useful. It makes me feel even better when I don’t mention it. Please do not take this as being proud of what I do. My recovery has been based on three fundamental truths that work for me: One, do not pick up no matter what—all feelings eventually pass; two, go to meetings; and three, pray. I tell my sponsees these same things. My experience is that everything else sorts itself out with this as a base. I have a lot more to learn about the NA way.

Reflections

These snapshots of our members’ experiences finding NA are meant to be similar to the sharing at a topic meeting.

Even here in prison, my life can be peaceful, orderly and useful. And by the grace of God I am making progress. At the end of my using, I was arrested for robbery. Though I knew I was an addict, I wouldn’t admit it. Getting high was the only relief I felt I could get, but it was becoming less effective and producing more problems. Here, I connected with a sponsor by mail. He encourages me and helps me work the steps. I’ve learned to just follow directions as best I can.
Living Clean
The Journey Continues

“Where once we had spiritual theories, we now begin to awaken to spiritual reality.” (Basic Text) As this project develops, we’re beginning to see the spiritual reality of so many of our members walking a common path. There is still time to contribute to the book, and the best time to affect new literature is in these early stages!

Join us in the online discussion board, which is open to all NA members at http://naws.org/lc. It is necessary to register, which is a different than the process for other NAWS discussion boards. The discussion board is organized by chapters, with the topic outline for each chapter posted for easy reference. Members share their experience living clean related to these and other topics. This wonderful reservoir of experience is aiding in the development of the book. Thank you to everyone who has contributed to the discussion board!

There is also a session profile so NA members can gather locally to help create input. At this stage, the most effective focus of these sessions is on the later chapters. The session profile is posted at http://www.na.org/?ID=Living_Clean_Project. Of course, sending input via postal mail is always an option: NA World Services; Living Clean; Box 9999; Van Nuys, CA 91409.

Review and Input
The outline and Chapters One and Two were out for review and input from the beginning of June through 15 September 2009. Thank you to all of you who participated in this process. The next phase of review and input will occur in early 2010.

Have you completed the Membership Survey?

When you participate in the survey, your recovery experience “counts.” The information gathered goes to those who work with and refer addicts to twelve-step programs like NA. Approximately 4,000 members from around the world completed the survey at the world convention in Barcelona, Spain, and we’ve received just over 3,800 online survey responses. This is just a small sampling of our membership, so we encourage members to complete the survey online at http://web.na.org/?ID=membership_survey_links.

Please forward this web address to your NA friends so they can participate and forward the address to their friends, too.

http://web.na.org/?ID=membership_survey_links

Be a part of and complete your survey by 31 December 2009.
Share your laughter!!

All NA members are invited to submit their ideas for a new NA Way comic strip. Whether based on the “Home Group” we’ve known for years or a whole new recovery setting and group of characters, your submissions are welcome.

Electronic documents (jpg, png, eps, pdf, etc.) may be emailed to naway@na.org with NA Way Comic in the subject line. You can fax submissions to 818.700.0700, attn: NA Way Comic, or mail them to NA Way Comic: PO Box 9999; Van Nuys, CA 91409.

Deadline: 30 November 2009
Multi-day events and those occurring between publication dates are printed according to the schedule below. To enter events or to access event details, visit the online calendar at: www.na.org/?ID=comingup-toc.
